Sometimes we get so caught up in the rush to finish a project and move on to the next one that we forget the joy inherent in slowing down and learning an entirely new technique.

This fall, C&T Publishing is focusing on process over projects. By challenging ourselves to go beyond what we know, we stimulate our minds to think differently, to learn new ways of quilting or sewing, or to see familiar techniques in a new light. A New Dimension in Wool Appliqué—Baltimore Album Style takes Baltimore Album motifs and adapts them for wool appliqué. Appli-quilting—Appliqué & Quilt at the Same Time! encourages you to combine two techniques for a whole new way of quilting. Piecing Makeover shows you how to fix your most common piecing errors. These process books adapt easily to classes and lesson plans—The Embroidery Book includes detailed materials lists, for example, while Hack That Tote! allows for endless variety from one basic pattern. By teaching a technique instead of a project, you create a passionate maker for life.

Once those passionate makers are hooked, they'll want to surround themselves with reminders of their newfound interest, and our gifts section is filled with just such goodies. I [Heart] Craft Tatts allow makers to show off their commitment for the world to see; coloring postcard books let coloring aficionados share their love with friends and family; the Happy Quilter Word Search keeps quilters entertained on journeys and in waiting rooms; and Bonnie Hunter Playing Cards bring scrappy goodness to any game. It's small touches like these that bring a smile to any quilter's face, as they're reminded throughout the day of the pastime they love.

And always, remember that we are in this business because we love all things fabric and quilting—so if you feel stressed or overwhelmed, pull out a few bolts and relish their beauty or pick up a book and be inspired to create. Being makers allows us to experience joy in the creative process, as well as in the giving process, so take time out of your schedule to make something that will leave you feeling invigorated.
